

URGE PRIORITY FOR INDOCHINA TALKS

Seek National Fuel Policy for Coal Industry

Lewis Shouts Opposition to Any Wage Decrease

WASHINGTON (UP)—Champions of the ailing coal industry—operators and labor—are on record today in favor of a national fuel policy to protect the nation's great mineral resource.

The plight of the industry, low demand, high supply, competition from oil, gas and imported residual oil, was aired Monday at a conference of governors of coal-producing states.

Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania called for and got the ideas of some fellow governors, officials of coal associations, and John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers.

Fine set up a closed meeting of governors today to appoint a committee to work out solutions of coal industry problems and submit them to Congress.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) announced, meanwhile, that soft coal industry representatives and federal officials will meet here May 8 to discuss the problems in Kentucky and other soft coal producing states. He said Interior Secretary Douglas McKay has promised to attend.

Lewis Opposes Wage Decrease

Ten governors, federal officials and union and industry leaders are taking part in the current conference. Lewis was the dominate figure at Monday's meeting. He coupled a demand for a national fuel policy with a statement that wages in the coal industry are not going down.

"There isn't going to be any negotiated wage decrease in the coal industry, bituminous or anthracite," Lewis shouted, "and on that rock I place my Ebenezer."

"So we might as well talk about ways and means so that the operators can continue to pay the way," Lewis joked at the government's action in providing a 100-million dollar loan for the European Coal and Steel Authority and dubbed "outrageous" the depletion allowance Congress has given the domestic oil industry.

Lewis said a national fuel policy is needed "to protect the public interest so that the industry can remain alive in peace time in order to exist in war time."

Stratton Praises Speech

He said any national fuel policy should provide for the armed forces, the chemical industry, the generation of power.

"It would be more than a suicidal policy," he said, "from the standpoint of national interest to permit the present chaos to continue."

Russia with its submarines, he said, could sink tankers carrying oil from Venezuela to the United States and from California to other coastal states. He said if Russia pinpointed and destroyed 10 big oil refinery centers, "America would be afoot."

Gov. William G. Stratton (R-Ill.) said he was "inspired by Lewis' speech." He said he hoped "some constructive work could be done to provide a healthy coal industry."

Radford Rushes From Europe for Emergency Talks

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford came home from Europe today for emergency talks with President Eisenhower and said he hopes "the French can hold on" in Indochina.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff will canvass the Indochina crisis with the President and other officials.

Radford told reporters at the airport that he does not have an engagement with Mr. Eisenhower "that I know of."

But it was learned reliably that Radford would meet with Mr. Eisenhower this afternoon after a lunch conference with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

They were expected to discuss a possible new role for the United States in Indochina.

The question before policy-makers was, in general, when and how far the United States should go to save Indochina from Communist conquest. The gravity of the situation was sharpened by French appeals for American air intervention at Dien Bien Phu, key French outpost which seems likely to fall to Red rebel forces at any moment.

Mr. Eisenhower said Monday that the outcome of the war in Indochina was going to be "the greatest significance for us, possibly for a long time to come." He said this is a "time of great decisions."

Fresh from talks with high French and British leaders, Radford expected to hold early conferences with President Eisenhower, defense officials, and the National Security Council. The admiral cut short his European trip by about a week upon hearing grave reports on the Indochina situation.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, retired Gen. James A. Van Fleet, and Asst. Defense Secretary W. J. McNeil planned to meet with Mr. Eisenhower this afternoon. It was possible Radford would go to the White House with the three who are leaving soon for a Far Eastern trip. The National Security Council meets Thursday.

Informants said an immediate problem confronting the Eisenhower administration is what action, if any, might be taken "on a crash basis" to try to save Dien Bien Phu. France has asked for immediate bombing strikes by American planes on the 40,000-man Communist force concentrated around the shrinking garrison outpost.

Inconsistent Oil Policies
Toward Iran Plague U. S.

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Five American oil companies are now negotiating in Teheran for an 8 per cent interest apiece in the Anglo-Iranian oil concession.

They are the same five against which the U. S. Department of Justice has pending a civil antitrust suit charging conspiracy to operate a world oil cartel.

This situation presents the Administration with an entirely inconsistent policy on foreign oil development. On the one hand the government has gone to court to break up an international cartel.

On the other hand, the Administration has been urging the same five companies to join a new cartel to get Iranian production going again. It could provide some economic stability for the long-floundering and bankrupt Iranian government.

The five U. S. companies involved in this two-way action are Socony Vacuum, Standard of New Jersey, Standard of California, The Texas Company and Gulf Oil Company.

Cabled news dispatches from the Iranian capital have indicated that the five companies have received a commitment from the U. S. government. This commitment grants them immunity from prosecution under the antitrust laws if the now pending deal is accepted by Iran. But no official government source in Washington will talk about it.

The apparent reason for this enforced silence is that everyone is afraid of saying something that might upset the deal. Iranian oil production has been shut down since June, 1951.

That was when Iran's government nationalized its oil properties and seized the huge Abadan refinery at the head of the Persian Gulf. This threw out the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. which had a 60-year concession on oil rights in the country. Anglo-Iranian had offered Iran a new agreement with a 50-50 split of income, but Iran turned it down and kicked the British out.

In the nearly three years since then, at least three major American attempts have been made to bring Britain and Iran together to get production going. All failed.

In these negotiations it became apparent that the Iranians would not accept Anglo-Iranian—in which the British government holds a direct interest—as the exclusive concessionaire.

Some British sources believed that American companies were trying to muscle in on the rich Iranian holdings. But no American company wanted to be responsible for starting international claim jumping.

This was the situation when the Eisenhower administration took over in January, 1953. Herbert Hoover, Jr., as petroleum adviser to the State Department, made a trip to London and Teheran, trying to work out a new deal. He is generally given credit for being an important middleman in organizing the new four-nation setup.

Under this proposal, Anglo-Iranian would retain 40 per cent interest. Royal Dutch Shell and Compagnie Francaise des Petroles would get 10 per cent each. The remaining 40 per cent would be split between the five U. S. companies.

The intriguing angle to this is provided by the pending antitrust suit against the five. This suit was filed by U. S. Attorney General Herbert Brownell on April 21, 1953. It charges that since 1928 these companies have acted in a conspiracy to control foreign oil production, manipulate world prices and divide foreign marketing.

This action really goes back to 1952, when Sen. John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) forced President Truman to release a Federal Trade Commission report which had been held secret for over two years. It revealed the operations of an international oil cartel involving not only the five American companies but also Anglo-Iranian and Shell.

This was followed by a grand jury indictment and a subpoena for all pertinent records of the five companies. They protested this involved millions of documents. They said it was blackmail.

Department of Justice actions were widely criticized at the time as being contrary to the national interest. The oil companies were praised for developing foreign sources of oil to protect national defense. Subsequently the grand jury investigation and a criminal indictment were dropped, and the civil action begun.

How the government can pursue this suit while at the same time encouraging the same defendants to form what is in effect another cartel is a complete mystery.

American Pilot in Indochina Receives Shell Wounds

HONG KONG UP—An American civilian pilot was wounded seriously last Saturday while parachuting supplies to the French defenders of Dien Bien Phu, the present of Civil Air Transport said today.

The pilot, identified as Air Force veteran Paul Holden, 32, Greenleaf, Kan., "received shell wounds in the right thigh and right arm" from a 37 millimeter shell which hit the plane, CAT reported.

CAT President A. T. Cox said co-pilot Wallace Duford of Kansas City, Kan., completed the supply drop to the outnumbered forces of Dien Bien Phu and flew back to the air base where Holden was hospitalized.

"Although his injuries were severe, they were not critical," Cox told newsmen.

Holden was hit by a shell which pierced the cockpit of his C119 Flying Boxcar. Another shell passed through the plane's tail assembly but failed to explode.

Holden, CAT's chief pilot, was the first American casualty on the airlift since civilian pilots began flying supplies under contract.

Were Found Guilty Of Hiding Leader In Mountain Cabin

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A federal court jury has convicted three men and one woman on charges of harboring Robert Thompson, fugitive "first string" Communist leader, in a California mountain cabin.

Convicted were Sidney Steinberg, 38, former assistant national secretary of the Communist Party; Carl Edwin Ross, 41, former Minnesota state secretary of the party; Samuel Coleman, 43, New York and Buffalo party leader; and Shirley Keith Kremen, 21, a former student leader in Los Angeles.

Communist documents seized by the FBI in its raid on the Sierra underground hideout last August referred to the United States government as "the enemy" and admitted the party had been hard hit by Smith Act convictions.

Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman refused to allow the documents in evidence during the trial, but they were made public after the four persons were convicted.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated seven hours and five minutes before returning its verdict.

All four were charged with two felony counts of being accessories to Thompson's crime of conspiring to advocate revolution and conspiring to harbor a fugitive.

Fifth Defendant Acquitted

Ross, Coleman and Mrs. Kremen were charged with two misdemeanor counts of conspiring to harbor and of harboring Steinberg, who was a fugitive from a Smith Act indictment.

Judge Goodman immediately remanded all four defendants to custody of the U. S. marshal pending sentence and arguments on motions for a new trial Monday morning.

A fifth original defendant, Mrs. Patricia Blau, 43, former Communist organizer in Colorado, was acquitted by the court last week for lack of evidence.

Thompson, former New York state Communist chairman, now is serving a three-year term at Atlanta Penitentiary on his Smith Act conviction, plus an additional four-year term for contempt of court in fleeing while out on bail.

Thompson disappeared July 2, 1951 and was found in the cabin near Twain Harte, Calif., with the four defendants last August.

Coleman, Ross and Mrs. Kremen face maximum penalties of 11 years imprisonment and $17,000 fines. Steinberg faces a maximum of 10 years and $15,000 fine.

Miss Bess Pemberton Is Honored By HTHS English Department Faculty Members

On Sunday afternoon, April 25, Miss Bernice Patterson, high school faculty member, entertained at her home, 120 Locust street, the members of the Harrisburg Township high school English department in honor of Miss Bess Pemberton, who is retiring from the teaching profession this spring.

The hostess served a delicious dessert with coffee after which John Schork expressed the sentiments of the group in this appropriate eulogy to Miss Pemberton. If one should try to express proper appreciation for all the good things in the life of a person like Miss Pemberton, he might write volumes or speak almost endlessly. To mention specifically each of her contributions to the lives of those who have known her through the years would require far more time than that allotted to me.

At our house the children like to say grace at meals. The older of them has learned fairly lengthy prayer of thanks for some specific blessings. Sometimes the baby interrupts with her own little prayer, "Thank you, Dad, for everything, Amen." So it is when one would enumerate the beautiful things in a lovely character. It seems almost better just to say, "Thank you, God, for everything about her."

We thank God daily for the beauties about us; but we are inclined to think of them in terms of trees and flowers, of sunrises and sunsets, of rain and clouds. I should like to suggest that we appreciate more the beauty of personality, and the strength of character in our fellow man.

One usually has to be so very careful about speaking of growing old, especially where women are concerned. Some women seem to dread the approach of age. I have always been impressed by the fact that our guest of honor is not one of those. She has often mentioned her age to me, not apologetically, or secretly, but as a mere matter of fact. I believe it is typical of her. (Incidentally, she's the only teacher I ever knew who could be so casual about such things). I think it is because the things that matter most in her life are the things that are ageless. Gentleness and goodness grow lovelier as years pass. Love and graciousness outlive youth and even life itself. It is precisely these qualities that have endeared Miss Pemberton to so many people for so long.

Some women have had their names recorded in history because of their beauty, some for their brilliance, some even for their wickedness. The name of Bess Pemberton is clearly recorded in the memories of those who loved her for her sweetness, her gentle graciousness, and her constant desire to enrich learning with wisdom.

Raymond Foster, principal of Harrisburg Township high school, added a few words of appreciation for Miss Pemberton's gracious character and loyal devotion to the school and community.

Members of the English department in attendance were the guest of honor, Mrs. Helen Dunn, Mrs. Lolo F. Eddy, Mrs. Lura Wasson, John Schork, Miss Julia Williamson, Miss Velma A. Ogg, and the hostess. Specially invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Foster, Mrs. John Schork, Herman Dunn, Dewey Wasson, and Mrs. Ada Reese.

Parachute Men, Supplies Into Besieged Base

HANOI, Indochina (U) — The French parachuted more men and supplies into the ever-dwindling circle of Dien Bien Phu's defenses today under cover of American-built fighters and bombers and early morning mists.

Up to 100 men a day are being dropped into the besieged garrison, providing a measure of the high command's determination to rebuild the strength of the besieged fortress against the next Communist assault.

The Reds hacked away at the garrison's outer defenses, striking at isolated "isabella" fortress which guards Dien Bien Phu from the south. Heavy artillery fire preceded the new attack.

Violent local storms signalled the approach of the monsoon season but did not prevent French pilots from setting a new record for sorties over Dien Bien Phu in a single day. Monday they chalked up 136.

Carriers Speed Planes

Corsair fighter-bombers, four-engine Privateers and B26 bombers, all supplied by the United States, took part in the French air actions. The Corsairs were reported to have cut two enemy supply roads over which materials were being brought in from Red China.

Reports in Hanoi said the U. S. aircraft carrier Wyndham Bay was due to depart from Alameda, Calif., soon with more planes for Indochina. The Carrier Belleau Wood, on loan to the French, was steaming through the Indian Ocean en route to Indochina with sorely needed aviation spare parts.

The high command said it was unable to confirm reports from Hong Kong that 10,000 Communist Chinese "volunteers" crossed the frontier into Viet Nam March 25 and were integrated into the Communist Viet Minh armies.

Metropolis Youth Changes Plea To Manslaughter

METROPOLIS, Ill. (U) — Ophis Evans Jr., 16, Monday withdrew his plea of innocent to a murder charge and pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter for the fatal shooting of his father last June.

Nine men and two women had been chosen for the jury in 6½ days up to the time Evans changed his plea. About 250 veniremen were questioned before the 11 jurors were selected. They were dismissed after Circuit Judge Clarence Wright accepted Evans' new plea. Wright adjourned court to an undetermined date when he will hear evidence in the case.

Wright said Evans may come under the jurisdiction of the newly formed Illinois Youth Commission, which would set his sentence. If the commission decides the case is not under its jurisdiction, Wright will

Wisconsin GOP Gives McCarthy Vote of Confidence

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The Wisconsin Republican Party Executive Committee has given Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy a "general vote of confidence."

Robert Pierce, Wisconsin state GOP chairman, said a resolution commending McCarthy adopted at a Monday meeting of the committee was "generally... a vote of confidence."

"We hereby commend Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy for his courage and fortitude in withstanding the continued attacks and sneers of the left wing press, columnists, commentators and New Deal dogooders who have attempted to divert and delude the people of this great republic from the real issue: Namely, the gigantic conspiracy of the Communist Party to infiltrate our government and rob us of our American heritage and way of life," the resolution said.

Britain Will Not Commit Troops Now: Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today Britain is unwilling to commit any British troops to Indochina before the Geneva conference has considered the Indochina situation.

"Her majesty's government is not prepared to give any commitment about United Kingdom military action in advance of the Geneva conference," Churchill told an anxious House of Commons.

The Prime Minister emphasized each word of his statement. He added that no new military or political commitments had been given in weekend talks among Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

His statement was made in reply to an anxious question by former Laborite Prime Minister Clement Attlee about the Saturday meeting of the three foreign ministers in Paris. That meeting sent Eden hurrying back to London for a midnight conference with Churchill and a Sunday Cabinet meeting.

Churchill warned that the "violent tension" raised by the Communist siege of Dien Bien Phu in Indochina should not be permitted to obscure the calm world view.

Malenkov, Top Soviet Ministers Are Re-Elected

MOSCOW (AP)—The Supreme Soviet parliament today voted Premier Georgi Malenkov and his top ministers a new term of leadership.

By acclamation, the legislative body voted to keep Malenkov as chairman of the Council of Ministers. The council actually governs the Soviet Union.

It also approved a list of 36 deputy chairmen and ministers in which Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin, and Lazar Kaganovich remain as first deputy chairmen under Malenkov.

Marshal Kliment Voroshilov was re-elected president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet which handles the business of that body when it is not a session.

Malenkov submitted the resignation of his government to the newly convened fourth Supreme Soviet last week in accordance with the Soviet constitution. The parliament accepted the resignation and unanimously asked Malenkov to form a new government.

Malenkov presented his government to the Supreme Soviet shortly after it reconvened today.

The list was virtually the same as that which has governed the country since Malenkov formed his last government last August.

Move Baptist Parsonage to New Site at Ledford

At Ledford the Baptist church did not wait until May 1, for moving day. Recently the church purchased the Pat Atkinson property next door to the church building, for a parsonage site, and to this site is being moved the parsonage building, which was some distance away and is being moved to the newly purchased lot next door to the church building.

Ted Price is supervising the moving of the church and is directing operation of the moving equipment, with the help of volunteers among the church members and deacons. Church deacons who have had a part in the project are Guy Yates Jr., Guy Yates Sr., Paul Yates, Hillis Matthews, James Brantley and Walter Hancock. Luther Bryan has also been a volunteer worker.

It was estimated by Mr. Bryan that the parsonage would be in readiness in a month, for occupancy by the pastor, the Rev. Olen Glarida and his wife and son, who will move to Ledford from Crab Orchard.

Bevo and Coach To Receive $30,000 From Globetrotters

NEW YORK (AP)—A $30,000 contract to perform as a sideshow to the famed Harlem Globetrotters put the fabulous Bevo Francis and his coach in the chips today—in contrast to their days at Rio Grande College which, they said, left them in tight financial straits.

Record-smashing Bevo and Coach Newt Oliver signed Monday to play with and coach, respectively, the Boston Whirlwinds—a professional team which will play against the Globetrotters on a 25 or 30 game tour of the nation next fall and winter.

Promoter Abe Saperstein, who owns both the Trotters and the Whirlwinds, sealed the bargain with a $4,000 down payment which, for the benefit of photographers, was served up in the form of 4,000 crisp new bills in a bushel basket.

Oliver declined to reveal the terms of the contract or just how the $30,000 would be split between himself and Bevo. Saperstein disclosed that the contract includes a second-year renewal option.

The tournament must be completed during the week May 7-15 with the subdistrict and district winners meeting for the right to enter sectional play.

At Taylor Field the pairings are as follows:

Grayville vs. Mill Shoals, McLeansboro vs. Harrisburg, Ridgway vs. Crossville, which means that McLeansboro will meet the Mill Shoals-Grayville winner and Harrisburg will take on the winner between Ridgway and Crossville.

The Norris City district pairings: Equality vs. Norris City, Marion bye, Shawneetown vs. Carrier Mills and Golconda bye.

Stock Car Racing Season to Begin Here on May 2

A new stock car racing season at the Saline county speedway will get underway Saturday, May 2, with time trials scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m. and racing a half hour later.

The local track will continue to operate under the Illinois-Missouri rules, which have been changed to such an extent that practically any type stock car is eligible to participate, it was stated today.

The rules changes are expected to attract many more drivers to the Saline county speedway and greatly speed up the racing program. Officials, in announcing the opening of the season, said that all drivers in the area are invited to take part.

Considerable work has been done on the track and it is in excellent condition for the opening racing program.

Plans call for a complete racing program each Saturday evening throughout the summer. Feature of Saturday's racing will be a 25-lap race.

Bob Miller of Decatur, who has officiated at racing programs in Harrisburg during past seasons, will be back again for the 1954 season.

Ridgway Nips McLeansboro, 2-1

Ridgway's diamond nine nudged McLeansboro yesterday afternoon, 2-1, in a nip-and-tuck battle. Each team collected five hits.

The Eagles scored first, counting in the second on a pair of errors and a fielder's choice. They added a second tally in the fourth on a walk, stolen base and fielder's choice.

McLeansboro came back in its half of the fourth to post their lone score on a single, stolen base and error.

Ridgway's John Mills fanned ten while McLeansboro hurlers whiffed eight.

First Two Weeks Indicate Wide-Open Stretch Battles; Dodgers Play at St. Louis

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Teams in both major leagues today were more closely bunched at this first east-west stage of the race than at any time since 1947 in the American League and 1945 in the National.

Although it is much too early for any real re-evaluation of the pennant races, the play in the first two weeks could be a portent of old-fashioned wide-open stretch battles, which would be a pleasant contrast to last season's runaways by the Dodgers and Yankees.

As play resumed today with Brooklyn at St. Louis, New York at Milwaukee, and Pittsburgh at Cincinnati in National League night games and Philadelphia at Chicago in a day game, the Dodgers were just barely on top in the National with a 7-4 won and lost figure and Cincinnati in second a half game behind at 7-5. Not since 1945 when wartime baseball was in effect, had National League teams been similarly bunched. In that year at the corresponding time, the Giants and Cubs who eventually won the flag were tied for first place with 7-4 marks.

White Sox Meet Yankees
It was much the same in the American League where the White Sox were at New York and Cleveland at Boston in day games and Detroit at Philadelphia and Baltimore at Philadelphia and Baltimore in night games. The White Sox, also 7-4 in the won and lost column, were in first place, half a game in front of Washington and Detroit, tied for second at 6-4.

Not since the first east-west competition in 1947 had there been an A. L. leader with such a low percentage at this stage. That year the Yankees were on top with 7-4 and Cleveland was next at 5-4.

In the first two weeks, the White Sox after a slow start have asserted themselves as possible strong challengers to break up the Yankee monopoly and they will meet the five-time world champs in the season's first "crucial series" today. The Tigers, who were picked by most experts to finish seventh or eighth, have been the big surprise although they are expected to level off. Washington could be a genuine darkhorse threat all the way, while the Athletics seem stronger than expected with good rookies and a manager, Eddie Joost, who is getting a lot of mileage out of his crew.

Cardinals Disappointing
Brooklyn is on top in the National perhaps because the early schedule has matched the Dodgers five times with Pittsburgh. The Pirates, who are not the weaklings of last year, lost four out of five to the Braves, but rared up and beat the Giants, three out of four. The Giants, in turn, rose from those defeats to shut out the Phillies three straight times. That's the kind of a race it has been — up to now. Cincinnati could be the darkhorse contender in the National, while the Cubs, who have been hitting heavily, are the big surprise. The Cardinals have been the big disappointment in the National while Cleveland has failed to click in the American.

Neither the Red Sox in the American nor the Braves in the National can be properly evaluated as yet because of the heavy run of injuries and ailments. They are definitely the two "tough luck" teams and may step up their paces later when such stars as Ted Williams, Mel Parnell, Bobby Thomson, Bill Bruton, Andy Pafko, and others are all in shape and playing together.

Campanella to Keep On Playing with A Broken Bone
ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dodger slugger Roy Campanella today shrugged off the disclosure that he has a broken bone in his left hand and said he'll play in tonight's game against the Cardinals "and go right on playing."

Campanella, most valuable player in the National League last season, revealed Monday night that he has a "chip fracture" of the small bone at the base of the little finger of his left hand.

It's not known just which one of a number of accidents was the one that caused the fracture. Campanella's hand has been somewhat sore ever since the opening game of last year's World Series, when it was struck by a pitch thrown by Allie Reynolds of the Yankees.

Disapproves Hardship Army Release For Billy Martin
MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert S. McClure, post commander at Fort Ord, has recommended against a hardship discharge for Billy Martin, former second baseman for the New York Yankees.

"I am disapproving Martin's application for discharge," McClure said Monday. "I cannot see that his position has materially changed."

"I personally feel that Martin would be better off if he finishes his Army service without further interruptions. If he were discharged now, the chances are his draft board would reinstate him again."

Martin said he asked for a hardship discharge because he cannot meet his family obligations on a salary of $80 and an allotment of $135 a month.

Trend to Larger Crowds at State Tourneys Halted

CHICAGO (AP)—A long trend toward bigger crowds at Illinois prep basketball championship tourneys has been halted.

The Illinois High School Assn. reported Monday that preliminary figures show decreases in attendance and gate receipts at the 1954 series of tournaments, climaxed by the state finals.

It was "the first time in years, perhaps since the depression of the '30s," that there haven't been increases in both figures, the IHSA said in the April issue of the Illinois Interscholastic.

The IHSA said preliminary figures show attendance at the district, regional, sectional and final tournaments totaled 577,938 and gate receipts were $377,000. These figures are 25,000 and $12,000, respectively, below 1953.

"First, during the week of the regional tournament, weather conditions were bad in the northern half of the state."

"Second, perhaps last year reached the saturation point. After all, tournament attendance just can't keep going up, at least not until larger gymnasiums are made available in some areas."

Receipts from district tournaments were up $200, regionals down $10,300, and sectionals down $2,100. Receipts from the state finals, where admission prices and capacity are steady, were about the same.

Oswego had the biggest district tournament gate receipts with $1,713, followed by Beecher, Earlville, Anna and Farmersville.

The Joliet regional set a new record for regional receipts with $10,184. Others with high receipts were Moline, Riverside Brookfield, Crystal Lake and Rockford Harlem.

The Springfield event took in more than any other sectional tournament, with $9,233, followed by Arlington Heights, West Frankfort, Olney and Aurora.

Marion Breaks Tie to Defeat Bull Dogs, 6-3

Marion broke a 3 to 3 tie in the seventh and last inning yesterday at Taylor Field to win a baseball game from the Bull Dogs 6 to 3.

With Everett Evans, who had relieved Don Beal in the sixth, on the mound, a couple of walks and a couple of hits brought in three runs. Don Groves drove in two with a single and the third came in on a fly to the outfield.

Harrisburg scored two runs in the first on singles by Jim Cummins, Ken Dunn and Ronnie Bean and held this lead until the fourth when Marion's Dwyer tripled and was waved home by the umpire on a balk by Beal. The Wildcats tied the count in the fifth when King, Gill and Brown singled, and Belchor, who had eliminated King on a forceout, scored.

Then in the sixth Marion went ahead 3 to 2 on Dwyer's double and Anderson's single but the locals tied the count in the last of this frame on Dunn's double and Beal's single.

The Harrisburg batteries were Beal and Evans, pitchers, and Bean, catcher. King and Anderson formed the Marion batteries.

The Bull Dogs are idle until next Monday when they play a return game at Marion. Ridgway will be here Tuesday.

KILL WITH CARE

JIM DUNN asked Mark Richards: "How are you making out on young Hughes' alibi?"

Richards frowned. "It's standing up, and getting stronger as they check more. I felt sure it was that boy. But with this alibi, well, you can see where we're left? Chief Hughes took that gun from headquarters. I'm positive it's the boys, even though I can't prove it. So what does that mean? Either he's mixed up in this himself, or he's protecting someone. Another thing, I've been to see Atwood again, checking with him on depositors who drew large sums in cash from their accounts. So far we've been able to find about $23,000 paid out in answer to those extortion demands."

"But Hughes wasn't one of them?"

"No. And there's more."

"Hughes in debt to Atwood?"

"Badly. He has turned over his installment accounts to the bank for collateral. Even so, he's short of operating cash, and his expenses are high."

"And Mayor Stone?"

"No," Richards said. "Don't forget Eddie. The other — well, it might be possible, but not that. Even when you think of mercy killings I can't see Stone in the role."

"Go on," Jim said.

"Remember I told you young Hughes was interested in photography? It seems he runs through an interest pretty fast. According to Chief Hughes, his son hasn't done anything with his photography work for some time. I insisted and he let me look in the darkroom. Lot of stuff, and a lot of equipment. But there's nothing there with cyanide in it. But there is an empty space on the shelf of chemicals, and there is a mark in the dust where a container had been."

"You point that out to Hughes?"

"Yes. I thought for a moment he was going to start telling the whole truth. Instead he launched into a riddle about how Eddie Stone still had the run of the Hughes' house. To hear him tell it, Eddie was devoted to young Tony. And Tony would do almost anything for Eddie. You see what he was trying to explain?"

"That young Tony took the dentist's materials for Eddie? That Eddie could have taken the bottle from the darkroom?"

"That and more, Hughes admitted Eddie Stone swiped the Hughes' car every chance he got."

"It could all be true," Jim said. "And don't forget young Hughes is alibied so far. So what are you going to do about it?"

"It isn't anything I want to rush into without being positive."

"Good. Why don't you go home I might as well stick around here as my hotel room. Let your man on duty go."

MARK RICHARDS nodded. "So you've really got something, haven't you, Jim?"

"Partly, maybe."

"Then this might help. I started the boys at headquarters digging at Vern Bruce's past as soon as he came into the picture. He's served time, Jim. A short stretch for manslaughter. Shot a man to death in a fight. Back East in the little town he came from."

"Might be a good reason he doesn't like guns any more," Jim suggested.

"Might be. I'm not going to ask you a lot of questions right now, Jim. But there's one thing I'd really like to know. Or at least to know your opinion. Did Eddie Stone really kill Chief Drover?"

"Under the circumstances," Jim said drily, "I think that'd be in the nature of a philosophical question. Even if the boy's hand actually struck with the dagger, the ice pick, whatever it was, could you say he was a killer? Or merely an instrument?"

At 3 in the morning, Jim got up from the desk and stretched the stiffness from his legs. He had gone through six of the manuscripts, glancing at them now and then for their contents, which were remarkably similar, but for a special page which might serve his purpose. So far his search had netted him only indifferent results.

He glanced at his watch, was reminded of the time 12 hours before when he had been late for that all-important promise with Nancy. He muttered, "it'd serve him right," and phoned Dr. Pardon.

JIM was a little disappointed that the doctor was awake, admitted to having just got home from the hospital.

"And how is Mansfield?"

"He's rallying nicely. If he were a little younger, I'd say he was out of danger. As it is, I'd still say he has an excellent chance."

"Will he need another transfusion?"

"I don't think so. Are you offering again?"

"Yes."

"All right, I'll call on you if there's an emergency. So you'd better get plenty of food and rest."

"Oh sure," Jim said. At the moment, he felt giving more blood to Mansfield might be easier than reading any more of the man's work.

Pardon said, "Is it important to you that Mansfield should live?"

"Very important," Jim said. "If you want a reason, you might say I'm protecting my investment. I don't want my blood to go to waste. And by the way, I'm at Mansfield's apartment if you should need me during the rest of the night."

"Good."

"And, doctor," Jim said, "could Mayor Stone have been up and around at 6 o'clock the morning after you gave him a sedative?"

"For practical purposes, no."
